Welcome

Colleagues, Health Center Leaders, and Friends of Farmworkers

Bienvenidos! Welcome to the 2016 Conference for Agricultural Worker Health (formerly known as the National Farmworker Health Conference) in beautiful City of Roses, Portland, Oregon. The conference theme, “Migrant Health Centers: Cultivating Good Health and Equity in America’s Agricultural Communities,” highlights the critical role of migrant health centers in ensuring that America’s agricultural workers receive the same level of access and equitable healthcare as everyone else. The model of care that health centers have perfected for the past fifty years serves as a beacon for other healthcare providers to emulate as the preferred model of primary and preventive healthcare delivery for all of America.

This year’s program includes updates on federal policies and programs under the Affordable Care Act and their impact on community and migrant health centers, and the populations they serve. We also hope you join us in recognizing several national health center leaders who will receive NACHC’s 2016 Migrant Health Awards.

Conference participants will also be inspired by distinguished speaker Dr. Roberto Dansie, who is internationally recognized as one of the most eloquent and accessible contemporary authorities on cultural diversity and health equity. He is an award-winning speaker, trainer, and clinical psychologist. Dr. Dansie has been a long-standing keynote speaker who travels frequently throughout the United States, Mexico, Latin America, and Europe.

The 2016 Conference for Agricultural Worker Health offers numerous educational sessions dedicated to leading topics in migrant health that will surely spark your interest, and provides the opportunity to meet new colleagues and catch up with old friends and peers. The closing plenary session will include an update on the Ag Worker Access 2020 National Campaign — our call to action to work collectively in doubling the number of agricultural workers served nationwide. The Campaign has set a goal for serving two million migrant and seasonal agricultural workers by the year 2020. An overview and progress report will be presented for year one of the Campaign. Panelists, from participating local and state organizations, will also share strategies that have been successful in achieving the goal of the Campaign, as well as lessons learned, and new strategies that must be implemented to ensure its future success.

The Conference for Agricultural Worker Health is the only national conference dedicated solely to the healthcare needs of agricultural workers and is an opportunity to learn from colleagues, share experiences, and advance our collective efforts and leadership in migrant health. Needless to say, there is much work to be done as we continue to shape America’s healthcare system to ensure that our migrant and seasonal agricultural workers and their families receive high quality, culturally appropriate care that is accessible, relevant to their needs, and provided with the highest level of respect and dignity.

On behalf of the National Association of Community Health Centers, its national partners, and the conference planning work group, we extend our sincere appreciation for the work that you do to promote healthy communities and healthier lives for the people you serve!

NACHC Certificate in Health Center Governance Program for Board Members

NACHC is pleased to provide a certificate program designed for Health Center Board Members who wish to follow a formal path of training and skills enhancement in the area of health center governance. Individuals who wish to enroll in the Certificate in Health Center Governance Program must complete the enrollment form (refer to page 9) and submit it at the beginning of the conference to the NACHC Governance counter along with a $25 application fee.

Note: The application fee is waived for applicants who serve on the board of a NACHC Organizational Member in good standing and who are registered for the conference.

How do I become certified in Health Center Governance?

To obtain certification, you must complete a total of 31 contact hours through attendance/participation in education sessions offered at one of NACHC’s national conferences (Community Health Institute (CHI), Policy & Issues Forum (P&I), or Conference for Agricultural Worker Health). One contact hour equals one hour of session time.

The total required number of contact hours must be obtained within three years of enrollment in the program. If 31 contact hours are not completed within that three-year time period, you must re-enroll and pay the application fee, if applicable. Due to the changing scope and nature of information related to health centers and the healthcare environment, previously earned contact hours will not be counted toward the new enrollment period.

Program participants must attend the following sessions in person:

- Board Member Boot Camp: Parts A, B, C, and D (5 contact hours offered only at the CHI and P&I)
- At the Bar for Board Members (2 contact hours offered only at the CHI)

Program participants must attend a minimum of 24 contact hours within the three-year enrollment period. Participants may choose from all other NACHC conference education sessions that are designated for contact hours. NACHC provides education content in the areas of CLINICAL, FINANCE, GOVERNANCE, MANAGEMENT, TECHNOLOGY, and POLICY. Participants are encouraged to select a comprehensive course of study based on individual interests and needs.

Scanning and Evaluations

In order to receive Continuing Education Units (CEUs) at this NACHC conference, ALL attendees must:

- Have their conference badges scanned by room monitors at the end of each education session attended.
- Complete session evaluations distributed at the conclusion of each session attended.

These simple steps ensure that CEUs are accurately processed and that valuable feedback is provided for the development of future NACHC programs.

In addition to earning educational credits through NACHC conference attendance, participants can receive credits online via MyNACHC Learning Center (MyNACHC) at mylearning.nachc.com.

Need your governance status? No more waiting!

All records will be updated within four weeks after the conference. Using your NACHC login information, go to the MyNACHC Learning Center (MyNACHC) at mylearning.nachc.com. Log in using your NACHC ID and password, information for the governance program will be found under the “Governance Program” tab. If you need login assistance or additional information about the Board Governance Program, contact mylearning@nachc.com or (301) 347-0400.

If you have questions about board governance credits during the conference, NACHC staff is available to assist you at NACHC’s Speaker and Exhibitor Check-In.

A painter for over 50 years, Currier is noted for his use of brilliant color and impasto texture, most notably depicting the migrant farmworkers of the Skagit Valley in Washington State. Lifelong artist Alfred Currier received his formal education at Columbus College of Art and Design and the American Academy of Art in Chicago, where he earned his degree in Fine Art.

Currier's art is infused with color and texture. In addition to this ‘impasto’ style work, he travels widely, painting on location. The ‘plein air’ aspect keeps the technical skills honed, while the impasto offers more creative exploration.

In 2003, Alfred Currier: Impasto, authored by Ted Lindberg, former curator of the Vancouver Art Museum, was published by the University of Washington Press. Proceeds benefited the Family Support Center of Tierra Nueva, an outreach program benefiting Skagit County farmworkers. Currier has an interest in uplifting the lives of migrant farmworkers, and has been active in advocating and assisting outreach programs as well as efforts to support immigration reform and resolve health disparities.

“Depicting the world around me, I use an impasto method of thickly-applied paint in fragmented colors. Art for me has been a lifelong passion.”

Alfred Currier resides and maintains his studio in Anacortes, Washington. His artwork can be viewed and he can be contacted at alfredcurrier@yahoo.com and/or www.alfredcurrier.com.

A limited number of fine art prints, commemorative posters, and greeting cards are available for purchase at the conference. Proceeds of art sales benefit the NCFH Migrant Health Scholarship Fund and awards will be made next year based on the volume of this year’s sales.

Scholarship awards in the amount of $1,000 each will be made at this conference to six recipients. The scholarship recipients are individuals who are currently employed at community/migrant health centers and have decided to advance academically and recommit to migrant health as their career choice. Awardees represent a variety of health professions, disciplines, and backgrounds. Come join us for the grand unveiling and awarding of scholarships during the luncheon on Monday, May 23.

An overview of the Campaign will be provided, and the outcome will include identification of best strategies for engaging board members and practical examples of how they can be the true superstars in expanding access.

Facilitators:

Joe Gallegos, MBA, Senior VP for Western Operations, NACHC

FMB1  The Patient-Centered Medical Home and Continuity of Care for Vulnerable Populations
Salon C

The patient-centered medical home (PCMH) has the potential to greatly improve patient outcomes especially among patients who are geographically stable populations. Mobile populations such as migratory and seasonal agricultural workers who move across state lines experience unique challenges due to mobility, poverty, language, culture, and occupational and environmental health conditions. Because of the mobility of this patient population and the unique social and environmental conditions, Migrant Clinicians Network has developed a PCMH model, Health Network, that eliminates mobility as an active obstacle for continuity of care. This model has been adapted for mobile patients with practical strategies for implementing continuity of care through referrals to health centers across the country via the use of health information technology.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Provide an introduction to outreach staff and others on the benefits of participation in Health Network.
2. Understand the benefits of enrolling patients in Health Network.
3. Develop specific strategies to implement at their respective health centers.

FMC1  Pesticide Safety: An Overview of the Environmental Protection Agency’s Revised Worker Protection Standards

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) recently revised the 1992 Worker Protection Standards (WPS) to strengthen workplace protections for farmworkers who are exposed to pesticides. With the help of health centers and other organizations that work with farmworkers, this policy change can positively impact the health and safety of this population. The new regulations include provisions that farmworkers receive annual pesticide safety training; prohibit children under the age of 18 from handling pesticides; and make sure workers are aware of the protections and have the information and equipment necessary to protect themselves and their families from pesticide exposure. This session will help participants understand the changes to the WPS and how they will affect the health of farmworkers and their families. Additionally, this session will provide participants with resources to help educate farmworkers and their families about the WPS and pesticide exposure, and to assist clinicians in the recognition and management of pesticide exposures.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Understand the changes in the Worker Protection Standard.
2. Access resources to educate farmworkers and other stakeholders about the WPS and pesticide safety.
3. Identify tools to help clinicians prevent, diagnose, and manage pesticide exposures.

FMA2  Utilizing Multi-Tiered Promotora Models to Enhance Outreach and Impact

Health centers serving farmworkers can combine both staff and volunteer Promotores(as) to build a program model that extends its impact by providing more opportunities to develop community capacity and increasing program outreach, communication, and awareness. In this interactive session, MHP Salud will highlight the collaboration between staff and volunteer Promotores(as) in two of its Promotor(a) programs in underserved Latino communities, discuss budgeting considerations for an integrated program model, and provide suggestions for creative and focused supervision under this program structure. Participants will engage in small group activities, including discussion on how to replicate the model in their own organization or community, and hear from a Salud Promotor(a) who will share her experiences regarding working within this model.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

FMB2  Taking Services Beyond Health Center Walls to Reach Agricultural Workers:
HOP’s New Training Module on Clinical Outreach

While funding for community and migrant health centers has increased steadily over the past years, the number of agricultural workers served by these health centers has been declining. Currently, only an estimated 18 percent of agricultural workers in this country are served by health centers. In May 2015, NACHC and NCCH launched a joint Ag Worker Access 2020 Campaign to encourage and support health centers to increase the number of agricultural workers they serve. Taking services beyond health center walls directly to agricultural workers through clinical outreach will be critical for meeting this goal.

From backpack and street medicine to mobile clinics and vans, clinical outreach is an approach that extends primary healthcare beyond fixed health center sites into settings that best fit the individual needs and context of patients and community members. It can also be an effective way for health centers to expand access to their services, increase efficiency, and strengthen the delivery of integrated care. In this session, Health Outreach Partners (HOP) will utilize a training module based on HOP’s newly released Outreach Reference Manual chapter on clinical outreach. Through small group activities, participants will learn about different approaches to clinical outreach, explore case studies, and share and assess their own experiences.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Describe clinical outreach and how it can maximize access to and utilization of health center services by agricultural workers.
2. Identify at least two different approaches to providing clinical outreach.
3. Be familiar with the tools and resources in the clinical outreach chapter of HOP’s Outreach Reference Manual.

FMC2  Improving the Oral Health of Farmworker Children:
The Dental Sealant Pilot—Lessons Learned

Based on the new HRSA/BPHC UDS measure, “percentage of children, age 6-9 years, at moderate to high risk for caries who received a sealant on a first permanent molar during the measurement period,” three pilot sites committed to collecting data monthly, sharing results, and participating in office hours to explore changes healthcare team members can make to improve results. This session will present the results from Year One of the pilot including a summary of voices from the field that can be used by all health centers serving farmworker children to improve their health status.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Identify tools available to perform oral health risk assessments in children.
2. Name unique factors that need to be addressed to fully integrate oral health with primary care when serving farmworker children.
3. Identify activities they can take back to their health centers to maximize the exchange of information by team members.

<td>The Salud! Grower Contribution Program was created by a group of Oregon winery owners and Tuality Healthcare physicians to address the barriers to healthcare faced by seasonal workers. Most seasonal workers move from one crop to another. Their temporary status with each employer makes them ineligible for healthcare coverage. Without insurance, these men, women, and their families often do not seek professional healthcare until their problems become acute. Their knowledge of health education is often limited, and they can be overwhelmed by the complex and confusing medical system. Salud!'s mission is to bridge this gap.</td>

State Initiatives to Extend Health Insurance Coverage to More Americans

Oregon: Health Care for All Children 2015 Legislative Campaign
Approximately 17,600 children in Oregon are categorically excluded from health insurance coverage. The goal of the campaign is to ensure that all children in Oregon have access to health services. An overview of the Oregon Latino Health Coalition will be presented and its policy and advocacy strategies will be discussed.

California: Health For All Act: The Affordable Care Act (ACA) specifically excluded undocumented immigrants from insurance coverage provided through the health care exchange, known as Covered California in the Golden State. An estimated three to four million people in the state will remain uninsured in spite of ACA, and almost a million of those will be undocumented residents eligible for coverage.

Access to preventive care keeps people healthier by providing regular check-ups and screenings, and early diagnosis of health problems ensures those problems can be treated before they become overly expensive. By ensuring everyone has access to health care, we can improve the health of our entire community, limit the overcrowding of emergency rooms, and reduce the costs of healthcare in California.

The Health for All Act - SB 4 - which will be implemented May 2016, will expand health insurance coverage to children who are currently excluded through Medi-Cal if individuals meet income requirements.

SB 10, also by Senator Lara, currently being considered by California’s Legislature, will allow undocumented Californians to buy unsubsidized insurance in Covered California.

FTuA1  Community Health Workers Make Cents: A Return on Investment Analysis

Despite a growing number of community health worker (CHW) programs in recent years, few studies have formally evaluated the long-term economic return from these preventative outreach programs. Return on investment (ROI) analysis, which estimates the cost return for every dollar invested, is one way to demonstrate the true financial value of these programs. This presentation will discuss results from the “Promotoras Make Cents” pilot study, which analyzed ROI for three CHW interventions, which targeted farmworker or migrant populations. This discussion will conclude with a hypothetical ROI calculation for a CHW intervention.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Identify intervention programs which may benefit from ROI analysis.
2. Correctly interpret and utilize ROI as a tool for program evaluation and comparison.
3. Design an ROI implementation plan for new or existing interventions.

FTuC1  Conversations to Improve Farmworker Health Insurance Enrollment

Over the past couple of years, there have been numerous challenges when educating and enrolling farmworkers and their families in health insurance. In an effort to develop solutions to these challenges, Farmworker Justice co-facilitated conversations with assisters and outreach workers at the Stream Forum conferences in Memphis, Albuquerque, and Portland.

This session will provide an overview of the discussions and recommendations developed at the Stream Forums to facilitate farmworker enrollment in health insurance. We will identify trends and share resources developed by health centers and others across the country. Participants will also engage in their own structured discussion to develop strategies and recommendations to be shared with conference organizers, session participants, primary care associations, and federal officials.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Understand common challenges to farmworker enrollment and strategies to overcome these challenges as identified by on-the-ground assisters.
2. Develop a prioritized list of recommendations to be shared with federal officials.
3. Share resources and tools across states to support farmworker outreach and enrollment.

FTuA2  Improving the Oral Health of Farmworker Children: The Primary Healthcare Team

Salon A

It has been 16 years since the release of Oral Health in America: A Report of the Surgeon General which provided a framework for action to integrate oral health into overall health. In addition, the report documented the profound and consequential disparities in oral health status and called this situation a “silent epidemic of dental and oral diseases.” While much progress has been made, health centers continue to implement strategies to assure the health of individuals and communities includes oral health. Each member of the healthcare team has a role to play in this effort. This session will present the lessons learned from a National Center for Farmworker Health project that includes a curriculum for oral health training for Promotoras, a framework outlined in Qualis Health’s Integrating Oral Health and Primary Care, and the need for interprofessional collaborations with the dental team.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

1. Identify training opportunities for Promotoras to include oral health in their outreach efforts.
2. Name at least two ways oral health can be integrated in the patient-centered medical home.
3. Identify at least two activities they can take back to address the roles of healthcare team members in addressing oral health.

Moderator:

Donald L. Weaver, MD, Associate Medical Officer, NACHC

Presenters:

Bre Holt, MPH, Program Manager, Qualis Health
Isaac R. Navarro, DMD, MPH, Director of Community Oriented Primary Care, A.T. Still University-School of Osteopathic Medicine

FTuB2  Immigration Status and Healthcare: An Update for Healthcare Providers

Salon C

For farmworkers and their families, access to healthcare is related to immigration status. Not only can immigration status affect a worker’s access to health insurance and transportation, concerns about immigration enforcement may discourage individuals from seeking medical services. Some farmworkers may be eligible for work authorization and relief from deportation under the 2012 Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) initiative. In 2014, the Obama Administration announced a new affirmative relief program called Deferred Action for Parents of Americans and Lawful Permanent Residents (DAPA) that could benefit many farmworker families. A legal challenge of DAPA is currently before the U.S. Supreme Court, with oral argument set for April 2016 and a decision expected by the summer. DACA and similar programs create new opportunities for farmworker families to access healthcare. Although DACA recipients are not eligible to purchase health insurance in the marketplaces, in California and New York they are eligible for state-funded Medicaid programs.

The H-2A temporary agricultural guestworker program is growing rapidly and may be changing the make-up of farmworkers in some areas. H-2A workers are subject to certain rights and responsibilities under the Affordable Care Act, including the individual mandate and access to health insurance and financial assistance in the marketplaces.

Health centers should have policies in place to facilitate healthcare for H-2A workers and farmworker families who may benefit from affirmative relief programs. To ensure that health centers have the necessary information to implement such policies, Farmworker Justice will provide participants with an overview of DACA, DAPA, and other relevant forms of administrative relief and the H-2A program. Farmworker Justice will provide a national perspective on administrative relief and immigration policy affecting farmworkers and will speak about the role health centers and other community organizations can play to support farmworkers’ access to information about these programs.
Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

1. Explain how immigration status can affect an agricultural worker’s access to health care.
2. Understand what the DACA & DAPA programs are and how health centers can help eligible patients improve their access to health care.
3. Understand the H-2A program and H-2A workers’ rights and responsibilities under the ACA.

FWA1  Medical Legal Partnerships: Connecting the Health and Legal Needs of Farmworker Communities  Salon A

Farmworker health is impacted by numerous social and economic factors such as poverty, housing, transportation, and working conditions. Often, these determinants of health manifest as legal needs that can be addressed by attorneys. Medical-legal partnerships (MLPs) address health in a multidisciplinary way that integrates legal services as part of the health team. The partnerships can provide legal assistance, advocate for policy change, and have the potential to transform health and legal institutions.

The National Center for Medical-Legal Partnership, Health Outreach Partners, and Farmworker Justice will provide an overview of strategies and tools to develop and build medical-legal partnerships in farmworker communities. At the end of the session, health centers will be empowered to develop a plan to implement or strengthen MLPs in their communities.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Identify potential medical-legal partnership opportunities in their communities.
2. Utilize available resources to develop, support, and/or strengthen an MLP.
3. Develop strategies to implement an MLP.

FWB1  Moving to a Viable Community Health Worker Model in Oregon  Salon C

The role of the Community Health Worker (CHW) has become a critical member of the healthcare team under a new “patient-centered” medical home. This session will explore the evolution and need to have CHWs recognized as a profession; the policy framework and advocacy that led to Oregon’s Traditional Community Health Worker model and how this model has served the profession. The session will describe the Oregon Community Health Workers Association to represent the interests of CHWs through a unified voice, its advocacy for CHWs with the goal of promoting a healthy community, social justice, and equity.

The session will provide an overview of the Traditional Health Worker Commission and its role in developing the educational and training criteria, competency, curricula, and certification requirements. The session will outline how the Commission promotes the traditional health workforce to achieve Oregon’s Triple Aim for better health, better care, and lower costs. A CHW who works in a community health center will share how the CHW program has impacted his/her career and his/her ability to better serve the patient/family and community.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Describe the overall features of the Oregon Community Health Worker Program and the critical role of Oregon Community Health Workers Association.
2. Recognize the strategic importance of the Traditional Health Worker Commission in facilitating high quality and culturally competent care.
3. Identify the significance of the CHWs in meeting community health needs in rural Oregon.

FWC1 Leadership/Management Skills for New and Emerging Leaders

New managers in health centers may often find themselves facing a number of challenges during the first months of a new position and many find that they begin this new role with little or no training. For many, they may find themselves in circumstances which require that they must learn their leadership and supervisory skills on the job or through trial-and-error, and may find the transition challenging. Although many new managers may feel overwhelmed by these new responsibilities, the first weeks and months in a management/leadership role can offer a critical opportunity to establish a professional identity and develop crucial management skills. Utilizing a program and set of tools developed by NCFH, the training is designed to enhance the skills of new managers/leaders and their ability to effectively provide leadership and guidance to their health center teams. During this interactive session, the presenter will highlight key concepts of management skills to include communications, time management, and employee morale and recognition.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
1. Describe core skills and gain confidence needed to be an effective manager/leader.
2. Explore various leadership styles and how to flex styles to lead others.
3. Describe strategies and tools to enhance communications and team morale to achieve effective outcomes.
