

THE IMPACT OF COVID-19 ON PRAPARE SOCIAL DETERMINANTS OF HEALTH DOMAINS

JULY 2020

The COVID-19 pandemic has illustrated how public health crises dramatically magnify existing health disparities due to the influence of the social determinants of health (SDOH). This fact sheet is first in a series of tools for addressing SDOH during the COVID-19 pandemic, and outlines how PRAPARE SDOH domains may be associated with individuals' risk of morbidity and mortality from COVID-19. PRAPARE is the most widely used social risk screening tool among community health centers, whose patient populations are at greatest risk of contracting and developing severe cases of COVID-19. Though the domains below are specific to PRAPARE, many of these domains are aligned with national tools including UDS reporting requirements. While presented separately, all of the social determinants of health are intimately interconnected. Care team members and aligned social services partners can use this information to identify those who may be most vulnerable during this pandemic, prioritize patients in need of outreach and additional services, identify gaps in and develop plans for addressing social risks in the community, and work to attain and maintain health equity.

Ask patients if they're essential workers when inquiring about employment status

Essential worker status puts patients at increased risk of COVID-19 morbidity and mortality.

Intersection of essential worker status and PRAPARE domain denoted with (*)

See the PRAPARE toolkit for implementation and workflow tips, community partnership advice, and more!
