Celebrating 60 Years of Farmworker Health: Supporting Continued Resiliency for the Future
Become a member of the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC) and stand with thousands of your health center colleagues to strengthen, preserve, and expand the health center mission. Membership is open to health centers, dedicated professionals, non-profits, corporations and students.

NACHC is the only national organization dedicated solely to CHCs and the people we serve. Their leadership in preserving patient-centered boards, securing federal funding to care for the uninsured, and advocating for COVID-19 resources, are just a few of the reasons I am grateful for NACHC’s work.

- Dr. Simon Hambidge, CEO, Denver Community Health Services, NACHC MEMBER

Welcome

Colleagues, Health Center Leaders, and Friends of America’s Agricultural Workers

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy signed the Migrant Health Act – a defining moment for our country, affirming the delivery of primary and supplemental health services to our vital migratory and seasonal farmworker families. Sixty years later, we gather to commemorate this important milestone and reunite for the 2022 Conference for Agricultural Worker Health “Celebrating 60 Years of Farmworker Health: Supporting Continued Resiliency for the Future.” Each year, the National Association of Community Health Centers (NACHC) and its partners host this national conference to exchange ideas and solutions to equitable health care delivery and outcomes, acknowledge the achievements and contributions of our founders and trailblazers, and lift up a new generation of leaders to carry this movement well into the future.

Community and Migrant Health Centers serve over one million migratory and seasonal agricultural workers and their families, representing almost thirty percent of the estimated number of farmworkers who reside in the United States. And yet, we recognize that much remains to be done to ensure agricultural worker families have access to quality health care and supportive services. This is why in 2015, we launched the Ag Worker Access Campaign, a partnership of advocates at all levels - national, state, and local - to develop more effective outreach efforts, identify new models and strategies for health care delivery, and provide training and technical assistance to those providing services to agricultural worker families, with the ultimate goal of reaching over two million. When we launched this campaign, we knew it would take time, that it would not be easy, and that we could not do it alone. That is why our partners and the agricultural worker families are key to this effort. We must do better, and we must do more, to achieve our goal.

Thank you for joining us in the beautiful Mile High City of Denver, Colorado — a city rich in history, culture, and diversity — and the perfect location for us to celebrate the 60th Anniversary. During our conference, you can take advantage of educational and informative sessions, hear distinguished speakers reflect upon the rich history and growth of the Migrant Health Program, and enjoy connecting with your colleagues to learn about effective strategies, tools, and models that have proven to better serve our country’s agricultural workers and their families. As we celebrate this time together, let’s also remember to look ahead and help prepare the future generations of migrant health center leaders.

The landscape of health care delivery is ever-changing, as are our communities and the resources needed to reach a just and equitable system. Agricultural worker families represent the heart and breath of many marginalized communities, and it is our hope that this year’s conference will reinforce the relationships, dedication, and spirit necessary to carry us into our next sixty years of the Migrant Health Movement.

Con aprecio/With gratitude,

Rachel A. Gonzales-Hanson, Interim CEO
National Association of Community Health Centers
Centene is committed to transforming the health of the communities we serve, one individual at a time. We know that every community faces unique challenges, which is why each of our health plans are managed, staffed, and real time decisions are delivered locally. Through our partnerships with FQHCs, hospitals, and physicians, we offer better solutions for better outcomes at lower costs.

Centene state health plans reflect our core belief that healthcare is best delivered locally.
General Information

Land Acknowledgement

We, the Planning Committee and hosts of the 2022 Conference for Agricultural Worker Health, honor and acknowledge that this event is taking place on the traditional and unceded territories of the Ute, Cheyenne, and Arapaho Peoples. As these words of acknowledgment are spoken and heard, the ties that these nations have to their traditional homelands are renewed and reaffirmed. Let us also acknowledge the painful history of genocide and forced removal from this territory. We honor the many diverse Indigenous peoples still connected to this land on which we gather and pay our respect to them. May this acknowledgment serve as a proclamation of our organizations’ continued commitment to Justice, Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion and to growing and deepening our awareness of and appreciation for the vibrant Indigenous communities who continue to thrive and uphold their sacred relation to this land.

Accessing Conference Handouts

All conference presentations and handouts provided by speakers will only be available on the Conference for Agricultural Worker Health Mobile App. The NACHC Mobile App is only accessible on mobile devices such as a smartphone, tablet, or Kindle.

To access presentation materials, evaluations, and speaker bios, download the mobile app (refer to page 6 for download instructions). It is your responsibility to download these materials to your electronic device and/or print copies if you prefer to have them available in paper form.

Wi-Fi

Conference attendees will have Wi-Fi access during the 2022 Conference for Agricultural Worker Health. Internet access will be available throughout all conference event spaces. Simply connect to the Hyatt Meetings network and enter the password CAWH2022 for access.

Note: NACHC cannot provide end-user support and personal assistance for PC configuration or troubleshooting; and does not screen or restrict access to any content placed on or accessible through the internet.

Music Playlist/Liner Notes for Conference

Throughout the 2022 NACHC Conference for Agricultural Worker Health, a curated music playlist will be playing during sessions and breaks in celebration of 60 years of the Migrant Health Program and the rich history of migratory and seasonal agricultural work in the United States.

The below information serves as the liner notes for the playlist. Liner notes are the writing found on the sleeves of record albums and in booklets, historically inserted into cassette or compact disc (CD) cases, to provide further commentary or explanatory notes about the musical recordings contained within.

The selections below are meant to be representative of the demographics of United States farmworkers, based on findings from the National Agricultural Workers Survey (NAWS) 2017–2018: A Demographic and Employment Profile of United States Farmworkers Research Report No. 14.

This playlist is not fully representative of the range of musical expression in the farmworkers’ country of origin. That would be monumental and there are a lot of musical genres that are not fully represented or represented at all. Some traditional icons of regional music are not included in favor of new spins on tradition. We have included a handful of songs that have been part of United Farm Worker rallies, including a version of “Freedom Road” by The Blind Boys of Alabama, for example, and the rest of the playlist assembles songs based on country of origin and ethnicity.

We know that the selections cannot do full justice to the cultural diversity of our farmworker communities but attempts to be as representative as possible — for example, we have chosen Joy Harjo (Muskogee) and Xavier Quijas Yxayotl (Aztec) to point to the work of Indigenous peoples, R.L. Burnside to gesture to the rich delta blues tradition, and so on.

Ultimately, we have chosen music that is vibrant, alive, full of energy and nerve. We have made the playlist living and collaborative, welcoming you to add your favorites or consider compiling your own inspiring playlist.

Birthplace, Work Authorization, and Migrant Types:
Summary of Findings
- About 6 in 10 hired farmworkers were born in Mexico (64%).
- 77% of all farmworkers were Hispanic. Among US-born workers, 30% were Hispanic.
- 32% of farmworkers self-identified as White, 3% as Black or African American, and 65% of respondents did not select a category; instead, they described race with an open-ended “other” response.
- 6% of farmworkers were identified as Indigenous.

States in Mexico
Among Mexico-born workers interviewed in 2017–2018, most came from the states of Michoacán (27%), Guanajuato (10%), Jalisco (10%), Oaxaca (10%), Baja California (6%), and Guerrero (5%). The greatest proportion of Mexico-born farmworkers originated from the Western Central region (49%), 28% came from Northern Mexico, and another 23% came from Southern Mexico.

Mary Zelazny, MBA, Chief Executive Officer, Finger Lakes Health Center; Chair, Conference for Agricultural Worker Health Planning Committee; and Chair, Committee for Agricultural Worker Health

Papi, Me, and César Chávez tells the story of “Gloria,” a farmworker’s daughter, as she and her father march with César Chávez during the Farmworker Movement of the 1960s.

Born from the Chicano Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s and 70s, Su Teatro (“Your Theater”) began in 1972 as a student-organized theater group at the University of Colorado at Denver. Throughout the 70s, Su Teatro performed politically charged agitprop plays and skits to support social activism and bolster civil rights causes. The 1980s saw a shift in its artistic output when the group began to develop full-length plays focused on demystifying the Chicano identity and celebrating the experiences, history, language, and cultural heritage of Chicanos, Mexicanos, and Latinos throughout the Americas.

In 1989, Su Teatro, which up until that time had been a roving theater troupe, purchased the old Elyria School in Northeast Denver. Having a home allowed the organization to expand its programming to include annual arts festivals and an arts education program in addition to a full theater season. In 2010, Su Teatro expanded again, with the purchase and renovation of the Denver Civic Theatre, centrally located in Denver’s Santa Fe Arts District. That move was part of Su Teatro’s plan to become a regional Latino cultural arts center—the only one of its kind in the area.

AMA1 The Migratory and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Perspective on Health Center Boards: Good Practices in Recruiting, Retaining, Engaging, and Training Board Members

Since the start of the Health Center Movement in the 1960s, the patient-majority, community-based board model has been at the heart of the Health Center Program. This session will provide an overview of this model and discuss the implications for health centers serving migratory and seasonal agricultural workers and their families. Topics will include discussion of Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) requirements for special population representation on the board, as well as strategies for recruiting, retaining, and engaging board representation from or for the migratory and seasonal agricultural worker perspective on boards. This session will also include discussion about approaches for ongoing board training and development, and will feature resources boards can use to support the strategies and approaches addressed.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Describe the importance of the consumer-majority, community-based board model for health centers and the significance of special population representation in health center governance.
- Consider strategies for recruiting, retaining, and engaging the migratory and seasonal agricultural worker perspective on health center boards, as well as strategies for ongoing board training and development.
- Outline various resources to support boards and board members.

NTTAP Featured highlights the 21 National Training and Technical Assistance Partners (NTTAPs), funded by HRSA’s Bureau of Primary Health Care, that provide free training and technical assistance (T/TA). NTTAPs support existing and potential health center grantees and look-alikes. (NTTAP Featured sessions scheduled during the 2022 Conference for Agricultural Worker Health: AMA1, AMB2, AGS2, and ATuA1.)
I first heard about the National Center for Farmworker Health (NCFH) when I was in the field of public health, working with teenagers and using theater as a means of discussing health issues. One of my favorite projects at that time was with a local farmworker community. I then earned my teaching certificate and taught art and English Language Learners (ELL) at the high school level. Next, I shifted to my favorite project of all: raising my twin sons.

All through my life, I've loved to paint. I've continued to find ways to indulge this passion - whether it be a quick study from life or a larger mural project. Now that my sons are in college, for the first time in my life I am able to paint full time. I've had the fortune of being able to study with masters such as Susan Lyon and Michelle Dunaway. I am particularly interested in artwork that addresses social issues, and I'm thrilled to be able to support the wonderful work that NCFH does.

Elizabeth Phelps’ artwork can be viewed on Instagram @lizphelpsart, and she can be contacted at lizphelps18@aol.com.

A limited number of her fine art prints, commemorative posters, and greeting cards are available for purchase during the conference. Proceeds of art sales benefit the National Center for Farmworker Health Scholarship Fund and awards will be made next year based on the volume of sales from this year’s artwork.

Scholarship awards in the amount of $1,500 each will support degree programs and awards in the amount of up to $1,000 will support those pursuing a certificate or other educational opportunity. The scholarship recipients are individuals who are currently employed or serve as board members at community health centers and have chosen to advance their education and recommit to improving access to care for the agricultural worker as their career path. Awardees represent a variety of health professions, disciplines, and backgrounds. Come join us for the artwork unveiling and presentation of scholarships during the Opening General Session.
AMB1 Caring for the Care Team: Recovery and Healing

Aspen Ballroom

Decreasing COVID-19 numbers, as Omicron impacts wane, give us an opportunity to shift focus and think about the future. We must also attend to health center workforce healing and recovery from the impact of a pandemic that is entering its third year. This session will provide opportunity for participants to learn how to support and provide essential elements of the health center workforce healing and recovery process. In addition to self-care, the recovery process must also include healing in community with psychological safety and narrative.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

- Understand psychological safety and healing in community.
- Use the healing role of narrative/storytelling.
- Apply hands-on experience with the healing role of narrative/storytelling.

AMA2 Financial Savvy Matters: Essential Concepts for Migrant Health Center Board Financial Oversight

Colorado Ballroom

The responsibility for a health center’s fiscal well-being can be an intimidating challenge for health center board members and is even more challenging given the pandemic. While it is tempting to leave fiscal matters to the “experts” who serve on the finance committee, board members must have a basic understanding of financial oversight.

This session will introduce foundational concepts, critical terminology, and guidance in recognizing red flags. It will also identify some financial oversight issues related to the COVID-19 pandemic. This session is designed to help board members gain fiscal confidence and provide the oversight that is essential to assuring access to quality care and the long-term financial health of the health center. Presenters will also identify financial oversight resources, available via the National Center for Farmworker Health and NACHC, to support board member education.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

- Understand the board’s responsibility in adoption of an annual budget and adjusting projections as changes occur throughout the year.
- Review board financial reports to monitor them for potential problems and opportunities.
- Consider the impact of the pandemic on health center board financial oversight.
- Identify tools available to support board education on financial oversight from NCFH and NACHC.
Health centers, Migrant and Seasonal Head Start, and Migrant Education share a mission to support farmworkers and their families. Many health centers partner with Migrant and Seasonal Head Start and Migrant Education to connect farmworker families to health care, but the strength of that collaboration varies widely. During this session, we will share strategies to maximize your health center’s collaboration with Migrant and Seasonal Head Start and Migrant Education and successful examples of these collaborations. Tools to support collaboration will also be identified, including the development of memoranda of understanding (MOUs). Participants will share their own experiences and assess their health center’s partnership with Migrant and Seasonal Head Start and Migrant Education.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Understand the roles of Migrant and Seasonal Head Start and Migrant Education and opportunities for collaboration.
- Develop strategies to establish and strengthen partnerships between health centers, Migrant and Seasonal Head Start, and Migrant Education.
- Share promising practices, resources, and tools for health centers to support collaboration.

Presenter(s):
- Alexis Guild, MPP, Director, Health Policy and Programs, Farmworker Justice
- Guadalupe Cuesta, MA, Director, National Migrant and Seasonal Head Start Collaboration Office
- Sirene Garcia, MS, Chief Innovation Officer, Finger Lakes Community Health Center
- Tomás Mejía, State Director, Office of Migrant Education, Colorado Department of Education

10:15am – 10:30am  Networking and Beverage Break  Colorado Ballroom Foyer
The systemic issues faced by farmworkers are largely tied to their occupation. As farmworkers, they face unique hazards that impact their health and well-being. They are also afforded fewer regulatory protections than other workers. From COVID-19 prevalence to pesticide exposure rates, the lack of occupation data results in undercounts when assessing the health of the US farmworker community. Properly classifying and reporting migratory and seasonal agricultural workers (MSAWs) in the Uniform Data System (UDS) is critical to the funding health centers receive, proper diagnosis of patients, and the health policies that impact farmworkers and their families. Migrant health centers play an important role in the collection and reporting of occupation data of their patients.

During this session, we will address the importance of occupation data collection and tools to support health center staff in the identification and classification of MSAWs. Presenters will provide an overview of agricultural exceptionalism, discuss the role of occupation data in farmworker health policy, share the importance of collecting accurate occupation data of patients across the health center team, and provide a framework for MSAW verification. Additionally, participants will learn about the Ag Worker Access Campaign, a national initiative to increase access to quality health care for MSAW families, and the roles of consumer board members and leadership staff in keeping MSAWs and Migrant Health in the forefront of health center priorities.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Understand the role of occupation and collection of occupation data in farmworker health policy.
- Identify the foundational pillars needed to establish the infrastructure for properly identifying, classifying, and reporting special populations to the UDS, particularly MSAWs.
- Understand the connection between proper MSAW identification, classification, and reporting; health center funding; and farmworker health.

Presenter(s):

Gladys Carrillo, LCSW, Director, Program Services, National Center for Farmworker Health, Inc.
Alexis Guild, MPP, Director, Health Policy and Programs, Farmworker Justice
Anthony DiBenedetto, Manager, Patient Engagement Services, Oak Orchard Community Health

Over 30 percent of health centers nationwide operate a mobile health unit that helps provide care and resources, and serves as a vital link for patients to the fixed healthcare system. This panel discussion will provide an overview of mobile health programs, present the business case for starting or expanding a program, and discuss innovations and goals for the future state of mobile programs. NACHC staff will also share details about a new funding opportunity for health centers that could help support and/or advance their mobile units.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Identify recent and historical trends and the current state of mobile health programs to advocate for their use in care for hard-to-reach populations.
- Assess the purpose, mission, and rationale for investing in mobile health programs.
- Discuss innovations with mobile healthcare in agricultural health programs.

11:45am – 1:30pm Lunch on your own

1:30pm – 2:45pm EDUCATION SESSIONS

ATuA2 Raising the Bar to Achieve Optimal Health and Well-Being for Migratory and Seasonal Agricultural Workers

Raising the Bar: Health Care’s Transforming Role is a national initiative, funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and led by NASDOH, to develop principles and action steps for the health care sector to achieve optimal health and well-being for all the people and communities it serves. Informed by NACHC and other national leaders, these principles and action steps aspire to better equip the health care sector to address the myriad of social factors and systemic inequities affecting health and well-being, both inside and outside the clinical setting.

This session will introduce the Health Center Movement to Raising the Bar and its vision for the health care sector and explore how health centers embody this vision already and can use this initiative to propel their organizations’ equity goals forward, particularly with respect to supporting diverse and community-rooted members of their workforce and reaching special populations like migrant and seasonal agricultural workers. Hear from the Northwest Regional Primary Care Association and its health center partners about how community health workers (CHWs) have, and continue to, raise the bar in connecting with and providing exceptional care to migrant and seasonal agricultural workers.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

- Learn more about the national initiative, Raising the Bar: Health Care’s Transforming Role, and how its principles and action steps connect to NACHC’s vision for the Health Center Movement of the future.
- Discuss how Raising the Bar principles and action steps underscore the value of and need for greater investment in a diverse and community-rooted health workforce, including CHWs.
- Describe the key role health center CHWs play in advancing health equity for migrant and seasonal agricultural workers.

Presenter(s):
Rhonda Hauff, Chief Executive Officer, Yakima Neighborhood Health Services
Rosalina Navarro, MBA, Community Health Director, Yakima Neighborhood Health Services
Seth Doyle, MA, Director, Strategic Initiatives, Northwest Regional Primary Care Association
Rachel A. Gonzales-Hanson, Interim CEO, NACHC
Sarah Halpin, MPH, Program Specialist, Social Drivers of Health, NACHC

ATuB2 Migratory and Seasonal Agricultural Worker COVID-19 Vaccination: Outreach and Testing Best Practices

In early 2021, COVID-19 vaccines were approved by the FDA - but in many states, prioritizing the migratory and seasonal agricultural worker (MSAW) community was not at the forefront. This session will discuss strategies used to design sustainable health education and vaccination programs through partnerships, like the Grower-Shipper Association and Clinica de Salud del Valle de Salinas, that provided nearly 47,000 MSAWs with COVID-19 vaccinations.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:

- Identify strategies to engage migrant farmworkers in health education and vaccination programs.
- Discuss successful health education strategies to overcome COVID-19 testing and vaccination misinformation.
- Identify meaningful ways to establish collaborative relationships with growers.
SCREENING for and addressing social drivers of health (SDOH) are widely recognized as essential for delivering whole-person care, improving health equity, and lowering costs of care. As the health care industry strives to provide excellent person-centered care, high-quality clinical care is not enough. It is imperative to also address non-medical factors that influence health. Research shows that SDOH accounts for up to 80 percent of health outcomes. Health centers are at the forefront of providing comprehensive, person-centered health care that addresses clinical care, social needs, and health disparities of their patient population.

This session will discuss how using PRAPARE, a national standardized patient-risk assessment tool designed to engage patients in assessing SDOH with value-based care models, is key to addressing SDOH and unmet social needs and promoting health equity. Health center leaders will share operational and clinical perspectives on using PRAPARE for value-based care, so that attendees may engage in small-group discussion on implementing strategies for this care model.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Understand the importance of tracking SDOH needs using standardized screening tools such as PRAPARE.
- Understand how value-based models are key to addressing SDOH and unmet social needs and promoting health equity.
- Discuss the experiences of organizations using PRAPARE to improve the delivery of care for Medicaid patients through enhanced data collection.

Presenter(s):
- Rhonda Hauff, Chief Executive Officer, Yakima Neighborhood Health Services
- Ellen Hey, Chief Quality Officer, Finger Lakes Community Health
- Nalani Tarrant, PMP, MPH, Deputy Director, Social Drivers of Health, NACHC
- Yuriko de la Cruz, MPH, CPHQ, Program Manager, Social Drivers of Health, NACHC

The “North Star” for our future is a workforce that reflects the populations we are privileged to serve. The ideal people to train for and serve on our care teams are in our communities. The recent National Academies of Sciences Engineering Medicine (NASEM) report on the future of implementing high-quality primary care reinforces training in the communities where you need individuals to serve. There are a variety of pathways to provide opportunities to accomplish this goal. This session will provide an assortment of program descriptions that are addressing future care team needs and partnerships that have facilitated the development of these programs.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Understand the importance of starting early in developing the care teams of the future.
- Identify new resources to assist in health center workforce career development.
- Identify the important roles economic justice and career advancement play in sustainability.

Facilitator:
- Donald L. Weaver, MD, Senior Advisor, Clinical Workforce, NACHC
4:45pm - 5:45pm
BONUS SESSION
Centering Youth Agency in Public Health
This session will be facilitated by youth leaders from Young Aspiring Americans for Social and Political Activism (YAASPA) and will focus on their “Y Incubator”- a codified social science workforce development program. Presenters will also discuss YAASPA’s public health pathway partnership with STRIDE Community Health.

Upon completion of this session, participants will be able to:
- Gain an understanding of youth-centered, work-based learning.
- Identify ways to engage in race-grounded reciprocity in partnership.
- Discuss youth-facilitated, youth development work.

Presenter(s):
Janiece Z. Mackey, PhD, MSS, Co-Founder and Executive Director, Young Aspiring Americans for Social and Political Activism

Agricultural Worker Health Vendor Collective

The Agricultural Worker Health Vendor Collective is a small group of companies that are committed in their effort to serve migrant and community health centers and show their support for the Ag Worker Access Campaign. They believe that health centers can substantially increase access to quality care for this special population through the power of collaboration, meaningful partnership, and technology. Their goal is to share innovative business solutions that can make a difference to the work of health centers, ultimately creating a positive impact on the health and well-being of agricultural workers nationwide.

Medline Industries, LP

OSIS

Unlike other vendors, OSIS is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization just like the members we serve. As a nonprofit organization, we are driven by our mission to unlock the potential of technology to positively advance outcomes in the modern age of community healthcare. Our technology assistance is exclusively tailored to community health centers so they can focus on their mission of delivering patient care to the underserved population. As one of NextGen® Healthcare’s largest customers, we understand the products’ “out of the box” limitations for health centers - and how to overcome them to make our members’ technology investments (and staff) as highly functional as possible. OSIS has developed a series of solutions and tools to manage patient populations, reduce documentation time while capturing quality measures, embrace PCMH, and report on the factors that drive your organization.
